Introduction

The Surrey Board of Variance is a volunteer Board and is an independent quasi-judicial body empowered to objectively determine hardships resulting from the Surrey Zoning Bylaws and to grant or deny variances. Variances are granted in situations where compliance with the zoning Bylaw would cause an applicant undue hardship and denied where no undue hardship can be found.

Terms of Reference

Local Government Act

Part 14, Division 15 of the Local Government Act provides the establishment, procedures, and authority of a Board of Variance (“Board”).

“Division 15 – Board of Variance

- 536. Requirement for board of variance
- 539. Chair and procedures for board of variance
- 540. Application for variance or exemption to relieve hardship
- 541. Notice of application for variance
- 542. Board powers on application

Please see Chapter 14 of the Local Government Act, RSBC 2015 c.1 for exact wording of the legislation.

Establishment

Section 536 states that a local government that has adopted a zoning by-law must, by by-law, establish a Board of Variance. "Surrey Board of Variance Establishment By-law, 2010, No. 17282" provides for the establishment of a Surrey Board of Variance and lays out the procedures to be followed. Board members cannot be members of an advisory planning commission, elected officials, or employees of the local government that appoints them. Board members are volunteer members; they do not receive remuneration for their work.

Procedures

Section 539 provides for the election of a chair, and vice-chair, and states that a procedures by-law must set out the procedures to be followed by the Board. City of Surrey's BOV By-law sets out the Board's procedures. The Board must maintain a record of all its decisions available for public inspection.

Authority

Section 540 provides the circumstances under which a person may apply to the Board, Board jurisdictions when considering variance appeals, notification process, and extended details of the Board's decisions.

In general the jurisdiction of the Board of Variance can be described as follows:

- (a) Variance of zoning regulation relating to the size, dimensions on siting of buildings or structures;
- (b) Structural addition of non-conforming buildings and structures;
- (c) Relaxation of certain limited subdivision servicing requirements;
- (d) Determination of the percentage of destruction of a non-conforming building or structure (a matter relevant to whether it can be rebuilt); and
- (e) Variance of certain tree protection requirements.

The Board may order that a minor variance be permitted, if the Board has heard the applicant and any other persons notified and finds undue hardship, and further the Board is of the opinion that the variance does not:

- Result in inappropriate development of the site or adversely affect the natural environment;
- Substantially affect the use and enjoyment of adjacent land;
- Vary permitted uses and densities under the applicable by-law; or
- Defeat the intent of the by-law.

The Board must not make order that would:

- Be in conflict with a registered covenant or Section 24A of the Land Registry Act;
- Deal with a matter that is covered in a permit or land use contract;
- Deal with a flood plan specification;

- Apply to a property for which authorization for Heritage Conservation alterations are required;
 - Apply to a property for which Heritage Conservation is scheduled or contains a feature or characteristic of Heritage Conservation; and
 - Apply to a property for which a Heritage revitalization agreement is in effect.

Legislation requires that the Board must notify the owners and tenants of the subject land and all land that is adjacent to subject land prior to hearing the appeal. The notice must state what is being appealed and the time and place where the application will be heard.

If the Board grants an appeal they may also sets a time within which the construction must be completed, or if the construction is not substantially started within two years the permission or exemption terminates. Decisions of the Board are final.

Process and Fees

The by-law states that any person appealing before the Board will provide a fully completed notice of appeal to the Board Secretary no less than twenty days prior to the next scheduled hearing.

The by-law also sets out the application fee of three hundred and fifty dollars, and subsequent application fee if re-applying relating to the same matter, of one hundred and fifty dollars, and the conditions of rebates of portions of the application fee.

The parties shall be given a chance to correct any statement made at the hearing and contradict it if prejudicial to their view. All hearings are open to the public. The by-law also addresses requests for an adjournment; when an appeal may proceed without the appellant present; when and how an appeal may be withdrawn; and the right to be represented by Counsel.

Application Process

Pre-application

Prior to submitting your application for a variance, contact planning staff to review by-laws, policies and regulations, and concerning your anticipated variance. In making your application you will need to consider your local Zoning by-law and maps, Official Community Plan, any other applicable by-laws and special restriction such as heritage, land use contracts; development permits areas and restrictive covenants. Zoning regulations restrict such things as site coverage, building setback, and sets minimum parking space requirements. The Board cannot vary certain by-law provisions concerning density and use of the property. You may also wish to contact other City departments to obtain relevant information concerning driveway access; road widening; subdivision; service connections; boulevards; and, building permits.

Submitting an application

Once you have reviewed all applicable regulations and determined that a variance is required, you must complete the 'notice of appeal' form; Staff will be available to assist you to ensure that the appropriate supporting documentation is being submitted (See checklist on page 11 of this guide). The items necessary for securing a place on the upcoming Board agenda are as follows:

1. The 'notice of appeal' form (see page 7 of this guide); when signing the form you're signing that you've read the application requirements and the terms of reference for the Board, as set out in this guide.
2. A letter addressed to the Board members, explaining in brief a description of the variance, any reason why the variance is required, and reasons why the variance may be justified, in particular why there is undue hardship.

3. Site plans showing property lines, all building locations and setbacks. The 8.5 x 11 (or 11 x 17) sized copy of the site plan should clearly show the area of the proposed work, by shading or crosshatching (see example of site plan on page 9). Your drawing should also clearly indicate the by-law provision and the requested variance. The site plan should include information regarding setbacks of all existing and proposed buildings. Elevation plan should be submitted as well.
 4. Floor plans labeled to show spaces uses and door and window locations. One set of reduced drawings on 8.5 x 11 paper.
 5. Elevation plans (side, front view, etc.) showing how the exterior appearance of the building will be changed with respect to windows, porches, entranceways and cladding materials. Building section illustrating average grade.
 6. A Certificate of Title (not older than three months) indicating the current owner(s) name(s).
 7. The Certificate of Title will also indicate if there are any covenants, easements, right-of-ways, building schemes, and design guidelines, which may affect the proposed development. Copies of any these documents are to be submitted with the application.
 8. If the applicant is an agent of the owner, then the owner(s) must sign a letter of authorization (see page 9 of this guide).
