

Reclaimed Memories, Inclusive Futures

Courtesy of Erv Newcombe. Grave marker for the Scott family in Surrey Centre Cemetery. They were one of the earliest Black families to settle in Surrey (Cloverdale) in 1912.

Courtesy of Surrey Archives, 2017.0022.95.387.6, 2017.0022.95-387.27. Rainbow Marketplace/ Afro-Caribbean event. 1995.

Courtesy of Maple Ridge Museum and Archives, P08993. The Peter Pierre family, Katzie First Nation. From left to right: Margaret, Xavier, Peter, Matilda, Catherine (Peter's wife), and Amanda Mary Pierre. Peter Pierre was a medicine person. He was instrumental in creating a written record of Katzie history and laws. Their older son Simon was absent. He had gone to England with a delegation of BC Chiefs led by Chief Joseph Capilano to meet with King Edward VII and protest the ban on potlatches and the broken promises of land claims. 1906.

Territories Panel. Featuring a land acknowledgement of some of the First Nations territories that Clayton Community Centre is located on.

Courtesy of Surrey Archives, SA1992.036.1366. Mr. and Mrs. Chow at Stephen's Market in Sunnyside. 1963.

Clayton Futures Panel. Created with children and youth from the Clayton community, using potato prints and linocuts.

Courtesy of Surrey Archives, SA1992.036.3518. Jagge Singh's Vegetables in Cloverdale. 1965.

Courtesy of Surrey Archives, Pre-emption Map. Showing Surrey and the Clayton area in the past. 1897.

Courtesy of Surrey Archives, 2017.0022.96-684.10. Street hockey. 1996.

Community Mural. A fabric mural painted with Clayton community members of different ages. Featuring native plants.

Courtesy of Surrey Archives, 2019.0019.01. From left to right: Tom Inouye, Ed Takahashi, and George Hirasawa outside Queen Elizabeth School. Tom's father, Zennosuke Inouye is believed to be the only Japanese Canadian from Surrey to successfully fight the Canadian government and get his land returned after internment. 1941.

Courtesy of Langley Centennial Museum, 3459. Thomas "Tommy" Fillardeau, of mixed Métis/Kwantlen heritage. Served during the Second World War.

Courtesy of White Rock Museum and Archives, 2000-11-18. David Andrew Charles, Semiahmoo Nation. Served during the Second World War. Sent off to Europe as an underage teenager. 1945.